Editorial Review

Review

“Fantastic, compelling, unforgettable! . . . Makes The Walking Dead look like a walk in the park, because the monsters howling outside your gates aren't the undead but your friends, your fellow students, your co-workers.” ?Alexander Gordon Smith, author of the Escape from Furnace series

“It has been 66 days since the global blackout that rendered all technology useless. Adam and the denizens of his suburb community continue to follow Herb, the retired former government official. But as catastrophes escalate and Herb's decisions become increasingly questionable, the teen begins to wonder if they've put their trust in the wrong person. Plot twists and double alliances will keep readers guessing and coming for more in this riveting installment of the survival adventure series.” ?School Library Journal

“The struggle for survival in a world suddenly bereft of technology continues . . . Ex-CIA Herb, however, warns that peace isn't just fleeting; it's deceptively dangerous . . . As the community's sole pilot and therefore crucial for surveillance and reconnaissance, Adam's all too aware that in this post-apocalyptic world, his community is an island of haves in a sea of have-nots. He struggles to help outsiders as much as possible and frequently argues against Herb's ruthless pragmatism . . . The philosophical questions and killer ending will prime readers for the next book.” ?Kirkus Reviews
